RE: Legal Opinion Regarding Ordinance Procurement Exemption

Date: September 13, 2018

In my opinion, notifying the Commission within 7 days of the execution date is appropriate and in line with the spirit of the Ordinance. Generally, it is preferable to have the effective date be the same as the execution date. However, where that is not possible, then the date the contract is executed should be the date that starts the clock for the 7 days required under the Ordinance.

This opinion is issued in accordance with Sec. 2-252(e)(1) and (8) of the City Code.

Miriam,

The ordinance says “effective date” however, it should be “execution date” ... sometimes departments back date the effective date even though it was executed by the Clerk afterwards. Could you, by City Attorney Opinion, add clarification that the date after which the CM must provide notice to the Commission be within 7 days of having the contract “fully executed”...? Let me know if that would be ok.

As for the one item that was fully executed yesterday, Celeste is adding a column to the memo that provides for the execution date (because the effective date was back in August)... at least this way it should be clear to the Commission that the contract was signed yesterday and they will be notified today.... See attached.

Let me know.

Thanks.

FYI. Celeste has developed a memo template (see attached) whereby upon execution she will inform the Commission. Please review the attached and advise if the format satisfies the requirement... Is it ok that the memo come directly from Celeste? The contract listed on the attached is expected to be executed today or tomorrow and the memo will be sent out shortly thereafter.

Subject: Ordinance regarding procurement exemption

Peter,

At yesterday's Commission meeting, an ordinance was passed on second reading that provides for a notice requirement for contracts entered into with consultants for professional services under Sec. 2-607(24) of the City Code. Please note that for any contract over $25,000, not including related expenses, the City Manager must now notify the City Commission within 7 days via memorandum.

Sincerely,

Miriam Soler Ramos, Esq., B.C.S.
